

Jo Ana Morfin

Jo Ana Morfin is time-based conservator at the National Library of Mexico. She holds a degree in Cultural Heritage Restoration from the National School of Conservation (ENCRyM) in Mexico City. In 2008 she obtained her M.A. in Curating from Sunderland University in United Kingdom. Morfin studied her Ph.D. at Bristol University and she is currently writing her Ph.D. thesis entitled "Unstable Events: Conservation and Archiving Practices within Contemporary Art". Morfin, now researches issues of digital heritage, digital preservation, sustainable digital cultural collections, the creative use of documentation and archives, as well as the crossovers between Performance Studies and Variable Media Art preservation.